Assassination with impunity.

Murder in the camp is, thank God, becoming less frequent every year, with the restoration of order and increasing number of foreigners. It is then for us as a reproach to ask to repeat the recent cold blooded butcheries at Guardia del Monte, which convey to us a damning bloodspot on the lovely picture of peace and pro ress which we have held up to the gaze of Europe. We question if ever so glaring a proof of the inefficiency of camp justice has appeared for years, as we find in the fact (so related to us) that the assassin quietly went home, and twice afterwards after the alcaldes ended have heard of the double murder which has caused such a sensation throughout the pariido. It seems the Jacade Paz was out of the way, as too often happens when his substitute was perhaps afraid or little anxious to avenge the blood of two foreigners. This mystery must be cleared up, and if any of the minor guardians of the law wicked at the moment, would appear from the round-robin confidence, they should be tried as accomplices after the fact and hanged. Capital punishment must be inflicted, and if Confederacy applied to tripping functionaries, we might look for more vitality in the country districts after one signal example. The blood of Gilligan and Davy cries to Heaven for vengeance, the laws of society demand a victim in atonement for deporting the State of two useful citizens, and the peace of the province requires the arm of the Executive to make itself felt equally by daring assassins and inefficient officials.

It is useless for General Mitre to cultivate a good reputation in Europe, if such barbarities are suffered to pass with a mere expression of pity or regret. It is idle for us to labor in the cause of immigration, or industrial advancement, if we cannot shew that our rulers at least exert themselves promptly to punish crime. It is a mockery to boast free institutions, if drunken gauchos are at liberty to murder all whom they meet, in broad daylight. It is monstrous to tax Irish settlers for the maintenance of corrupt or sleepy magistrates, who look on calmly at the unbowelled remains of those whom they are paid to protect. It is dangerous to public tranquility if foreigners are led to believe that the law is a dead-letter, and that they must fight offenders. We conclude too much in the wisdom of our representment, and in its sympathy for foreigners to suppose that such will come to pass. But we have already perceived a disposition on the part of some of our colleagues to look up, or pass over in silence, the enormities which sometimes are perpetrated on foreigners. To call the attention of both Nation and Provincial rulers, we intend to offer a reward for the apprehension of the assassin and conviction of any alcaldes or tenientes who may have been cognizant of the murder.

We do not think a heavy reward necessary in this case, as the murderers are supported by none of the respectable portion of the people of the Department, and we have no positive evidence of the complicity of crime in the others, but we have strong suspicion, which demands investigation, and we look to General Mitre and Governor Saavedra for speedy and complete justice. We will return to this subject.

Forgive and Forget.

In time of public danger mercy and justice are necessary as humanity and dub severity, since clemency is often interpreted as weakness or indecision. When bold adventurers or political opponents, threaten by an the State with anarchy, the first remedy for our Husband. We earn must be to crush them with out delay. Self preservation imperatively requires us to maintain order at any cost. But when peace is restored and the few trouble-some spirits swept away, the ability of mercy should sheath the avenging sword. "To err is human, to forgive divine," and the laurels of victory acquire a double lustre when intertwined with the olive branch of amnesty.

General Mitre has now conquered all his adversaries, some by the lightning flash of his sabre, but many more by the wisdom of his policy. Urquiza died to show the supporters of the old regime that he neither fears their numbers and influence, nor entertain a rancorous aversion to their persons. Many of the leading characters who fought in the war of Independence, others are eminent men who do honor to their country by the brilliance of their genius, and indeed not a few are deserving of popularity not a few are deserving of popularity because resulting in ill-conditure. There may be some troubled spirits among the exiles who love disorder, and like to trap out all government; but these will have also such characters among the sickly style themselves what is unlike, and we must not confound a whole party with half-dozen of its excitable members. Let the Government but be consolidated, and the exiles will soon return to their homes and duties. Many families who were stripped of home and property by the fallen tyrant's dictation, will soon be driven back to again earn by industry and economy. Let us then be generous to return good for evil, and among the Argentine banished from the Republic there are many who had no share in the tyranny of Parandand not a few who opposed the cause of Liberty in the disastrous era of Rosas. If the martyrs of the reign of terror will but call to mind the multitudes they underwent in a brief, and they cannot but feel pity for the victims of a reign which has to suffer a like hard fate at their hands.

By publishing a general amnesty for all political offences, we shall gain no accession of power, but we shall extend wool, however, will not be sold in the place, as the owner ships it for the U. S.

One of the best known wools in the country was sold yesterday, on contract. Great secrecy is preserved as to the price but we are in a position to state that 120 was the figure, both merinos and merino going at this price.

The greatest anxiety exists about the Ocean Packet, and buyers wish to keep back until they hear further; meanwhile on tolders are coming into the markets and buying up choice lots on speculation, sheep skins are in great demand but hides are heavy.

Handbook and Reading Room.

Rosario, Oct 29.

DEAR SIR—I am arranging tables and statistics for Handbook; I hope to have them ready to send by Captain Bruce on Saturday. As they refer to the province of Santa Fe, as well as our city, I hope you will be able to reserve 8 or 10 pages of the Guide for them. I shall need you, twice a month, some papers for your newsroom.

NOTICE.

TO THE CONSUMERS OF THE

Genuine "Tennents" Ale.

The undersigned, sole agent for the sale of the Genuine Tennent Ale, considers it their duty to caution Imbibers the numerous consumers of this beverage the perfect which has come to their knowledge, that there exist in this place many falsifications of this mark, effected not only with Ale manufactured in the country, but also with that imported from European brewer. Various brewers, availing themselves of the widespread and deserved reputation which Tennents Ale enjoys, have not scrupled to adopt the plan of changing the label which originally came affixed to the bottles of shipments to their consignment, and to substitute labels of the brewer's and name of Tennent, which label as such a position in this country. In no number of the Ale, thus falsely labelled is for the most part of very bad quality, and entirely unwholesome, and not for the "Genuine" Ale which it bears, the prejudice thus unmerited to the legitimate Ale is rendered of the greater, and it is for this reason that consumers are warned to purchase only from Stores of known respectability.

The Ed Ideal Ale which is imported does not bear the name Tennent, but a label on the cork that published in this Country is not contained in bottles of the same size and regularity of shape of the real Tennents Ale.
